

unWired broadband Challenges

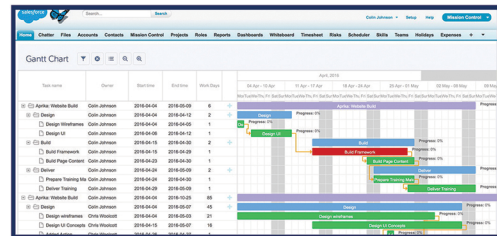

Prior to Mission Control, maintaining specific budget requirements and accurately determining project costs were constant. Now, it's integrated nicely with Mission Control and our current purchase order system and helped draw precise data.

How has Mission Control Helped?

Now with Mission Control, the accuracy of our data has been better than ever before. We can now forecast further, and analysing budgets are easier.

Any Plans?

A major key result we've experienced here is smoother flow for projects. Future plans of using Mission Control are to establish baseline pricing, schedules, and processes.

About unWired Broadband unWired Broadband is the largest wireless internet service provider in the Central San Joaquin Valley of California. With over 30,000 square miles of coverage, Mission Control has helped in managing complex large scale projects to provide valuable services to our customers.

"We tried several PM solutions within Salesforce AppExchange, none have come close to this one. MC has the ability to manage small projects and the capability of handling large ones with ease. Most of the apps on the market are only for either small and simple ones, or too large and complex. MC has the best of both worlds. Some custom coding maybe needed to get it working perfectly for your company. Superb support, these guys literally don't sleep, always more than willing to answer questions, and give one-on-one training on your time. These guys are the meaning of customer support."
